Q As a fan of The Closer, I was distracted by Sedgwick's clownish red lipstick. I wrote to the show to complain—and, sure enough, the changed shades. Did viewers have a hand in that?—Phyllis Ralston, Mount Laurel, N.J.

A Idol, Melinda, 29, says she achieved her goal of leaving the obscurity of a backup singer and stepping into the spotlight. She's now touring with the Idol concert. After that, she plans to record an album and wading through a mountain of creative offers.

Yes. "I heard so much criticism from viewers, I started to think people didn't just hate the lipstick, they also hated me," Closer creator Jerry Bruckheimer tells us. "So we worked her lipstick change into a story about a murderous cosmetic surgeon." Now that's viewer discretion!

Q One of our favorite actors is Ernest Borgnine. What's he up to these days?—Jerry and Linda Bebault, Albuquerque, N.M.

Q I hear Shia LaBeouf will have a big part in the fourth Indiana Jones film. What can you tell me?—Vicky K., Woodland Hills, Calif.

A Contrary to early reports, Shia doesn't play Indy's son. He plays his sidekick. At 21, he should be able to keep up with Ford, who just turned 65. And the setting has been updated from the 1930s to the '50s. But will Shia get his own Indy-style hat? "That's a closely guarded secret," says Mark Mejia, owner of Baron Hats, which created Ford's specially aged "Cliffhanger" fedora. Readers, what's your favorite Indy movie? Tell us at Parade.com.

LaBeouf: Ready to fill Ford's shoes—and his hat?

A Borgnine turned 90 this year. He wrapped A Grandpa for Christmas for the Hallmark Channel, to air in December, and finished his autobiography, due out next year. He and his wife No. 5, Tova (they've been married 44 years), still live in the Beverly Hills house Borgnine bought in 1965.
